If YES, please describe the future assumed management actions taken into account in the calculation of the current estimates for any product line in any Field Testing segment. Please address at least the following points for each relevant line of business:

- Any material changes in future assumed management actions since the most recent prior Field Testing exercise you participated in

Key FT Technical Specification sections relevant to this section	7 GAAP with Adjustments valuation approach (“GAAP Plus”)

71	For Field Testing in 2016, default risk is not addressed in determining the AOCI adjustment. However, a default risk component is being considered for the AOCI adjustment. This default risk component would be intended to segregate and remove those losses embedded in the unrealized gain/loss that have been incurred but not identified or written off through impairment recognition. A possible method for calculating the default risk adjustment is to reference the credit rating at purchase (or previous write down) as compared to the current rating. The change in rating can be used to determine the portion of the credit spread related to default risk. Do you consider that there are other, more appropriate, ways to calculate a default risk component for the AOCI adjustment under GAAP Plus?
